Legal Action May Be Taken to Stop Hoffa

By NORMAN WALKER
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government is reliably reported considering legal action to stop James R. Hoffa from operating as president of the Teamsters Union if he is unable to obtain a "faithful duty" bond after Feb. 8.

Hoffa told the House Labor Committee Friday that neither he nor his union can be held in willful violation of the bonding requirement because the bonding firms have all suddenly refused to extend further bonding protection.

The Teamsters Union chief blamed the impasse on alleged Justice Department pressure, a charge denied before the committee by Deputy Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach. The Justice Department has suggested the bonding firms may be balking at underworld connections of Teamsters insurance agents.

Officials said there are two mandatory requirements of the law under consideration: That union officials be bonded, and that no union official without bond be permitted to "receive, handle, disburse, or otherwise exercise custody or control of the funds or other property of a labor organization."

The penalty for "willful" violation of either provision of the 1959 Landrum-Griffin labor law is a maximum $10,000 fine and a year in prison.

The government is said to take the view that a union might be excused from willful failure to bond its officers, the first requirement, if the union made a good faith effort to get bond coverage and still couldn't do so.

This would not apply, however, if there was a lack of good faith, such as conditioning the bond on the bonding company making kickbacks of part of the premium.

Officials see no discretion as to the second requirement—that no union official without being bonded may handle or control union funds. To attempt to do so without a bond, for whatever reason, they say, clearly would be a willful violation.

The government has not made a firm decision about what it will do if Hoffa and other officers and employees at Teamsters headquarters here and in some 450 local lack coverage when their present bond expires at noon on Feb. 8. But high officials said today they feel they will be impelled to take court action, alleging violation of either or both requirements.

Refuses to Say More on U.S. Meddling

OTTAWA (AP)—Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker declared today Canada has demonstrated it is "not in the New Frontier of the United States."

Diefenbaker told reporters he would not comment directly on remarks of U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk at a Washington news conference until he has read an official report on them.

"Canada is not in the New Frontier of the United States," Rusk said in Washington he is conveying his regrets to Canada for the tone of the State Department's news release Wednesday concerning Canada's nuclear policy.

"I have nothing to add to what I said yesterday and a week ago today," Diefenbaker said. "I gave the facts, and the facts that I gave were correct and proper, and I have nothing to add to the propriety of the State Department."

A reporter noted that Rusk said his department's statement contained the proper facts.

"I answered those facts," Diefenbaker said, "and we do not need any assistance from the State Department for after all, I repeat, Canada is not in the New Frontier of the United States. We have shown that."

Head of Hope Schools Honored

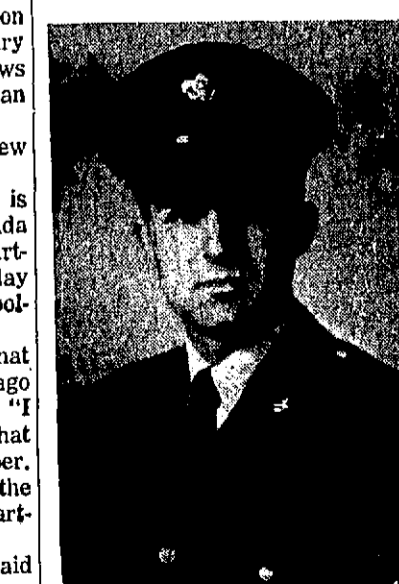

James H. Jones

Friday, Feb. 1, was Teacher Appreciation Day at Hope High School. This is the day in which the Student Council tries to show teachers how much they are appreciated.

Council members start the day taking over hall duty for the teachers. There was a special poem and Bible reading over the public address system, and a special committee gave each teacher a few small favors.

At activity period, a special program was held in the auditorium. Vince Foster, student council president, gave a talk in which he dedicated the program to Supl. James H. Jones. This was in recognition and appreciation of 30 years service to Hope High School. Brief sketches were given by other student and faculty members.

At noon, teachers were served in the cafeteria by Council members and some of their mothers, at special tables. Special recognition is due Jan Ellis, chairman of Teacher Appreciation Day Committee and Diane Ellis and Mac McLarty, committee members and to the National Honor Society for stage decorations and to all students for their fine cooperation.

Sp 4 Charles T. Rogers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Rogers of Hope, was recently named soldier of the month with the 2nd Army TTC in Inchon. He is a supply clerk, a native of Washington, graduate of Hope High and entered the army in 1961.

Says France Not Seeking to Dominate

NEW YORK (AP)—The French ambassador to the United States, Herve Alphand, said today that France has no desire to dominate Europe and stands ready to accept Great Britain into the Common Market whenever Britain accepts the rules of the club.

"All these rumors about France wanting to create a sort of isolationist Europe are not really substantiated by the facts," Alphand said in an interview.

The National Broadcasting Co. "Today" television program carried the taped interview.

Asked about President Charles de Gaulle's opposition to Britain's bid for entry into the Common Market, Alphand said the reason for it was that Britain was not ready to "accept various provisions of the Rome treaty."

"When and if Britain is ready to accept these rules, of course, Britain would be accepted as a member of the club," he said.

In reference to British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's charge that De Gaulle was trying to dominate Europe, Alphand said:

"There is no intention of the French to dominate Europe. France has given independence to 20 nations in Africa in the last few years; and there is no intention of domination on the part of France or any of its leaders."

Alphand said France's position against admitting Britain to the Common Market at present has not altered France's alliance with the United States and the West.

Soil Tests Important to Agriculture

By J. C. TILLMAN

Associated Press Staff Writer
There is a little known phase of state service that is helping farmers increase their yield and boost the state's agricultural economy—soil testing.

It could mean increased income of as much as $3 million a year in Montgomery County where the service is being extensively used.

The program in that county was outlined last Jan. 24 by Walter Cummings, then county agent in the county. Leroy Barber, who succeeded him, has carried it on.

The formula is simple: take a sample of soil, have it tested by the Arkansas University Testing Station, and follow recommendations for fertilization of the soil to gain a greater yield.

The results can be amazing. According to figures originally outlined by Cummings, there are 42,000 acres of cotton planted in Montgomery County each year. The average yield is 500 pounds per acre.

With proper soil testing and fertilization, the average yield could reach 600 pounds. Multiply that 100 pound increase by the 42,000 acres, times the 32 cents support price and you have $1,344,000 more income from cotton.

Average harvest per acre for rice is 80 bushels. With fertilizer this could be increased to 90 bushels. Multiply the 10 bushel increase by the 32,000 acres of rice planted in the county. This at $2 a bushel, nets an additional $256,000.

Cummings figured an extra $1,350,000 could be made on the 60,000 acres of soybeans planted in the county.

The possible increase from the three major crops of the county alone comes to $2,954,000. "Figures show that income is spent seven times within a county, benefiting every phase of the economy," Cummings said.

Barber said the program is being actively boosted in the county, through talks to farm groups, work with 4-H clubs and other youth groups and through pamphlets.

In 1961, 700 soil tests were taken on 16,000 acres of land. This was the first year of the program. In 1962, this was increased to 1,125 samples, covering 35,000 acres.

Thus far this year, Barber said, 150 samples have been taken on 3,500 acres, indicating an even more successful year in the program.

Charges Russia Has Missiles, Men in Cuba

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., has charged that "behind the brush curtain in Cuba" lies a formidable Soviet strategic base with ballistic missiles and 30,000 to 40,000 troops.

He said—in a newsletter to constituents Friday—that the information came from reliable sources. A Pentagon spokesman disputed the report, telling newsmen:

"The information contained in Sen. Thurmond's weekly newsletter is at wide variance with carefully evaluated data collected by U.S. intelligence from continued surveillance and other sources."

And the spokesman for the Pentagon—which for more than a week has been contradicting "informed sources" claims of growing Russian power on Cuba—asked the senator to back up his charges.

Thurmond made public his estimates—without identifying the sources—as a Senate Armed Services subcommittee tagged the Cuban military situation for an early investigation to "get all the facts." And Secretary of State Dean Rusk conceded at a news conference that "there is a significant Soviet military presence in Cuba which is of great concern to the United States."

Thurmond, a reserve Army major general, listed an array of missiles, bombers, tanks and other armaments in Cuba which he said "indicates the presence of a complete Soviet army, and the inventory normally assigned to a Soviet army."

Among the armament he listed as in Cuba were:

—"Nuclear-tipped FROG missiles, with a 300-mile range."

—"More than 150 Cruise missiles, some of which arrived in the last three weeks, are on four coastal defense sites."

—"Estimates of ballistic missiles with a 1,000-2,000-mile range in underground facilities run between 100 and 200."

Thurmond also contended that proof of Cuba's strategic importance to Russia is "the continuing assignment in Cuba of Soviet Lt. Gen. Pavel B. Dankevich, prominent Russian expert in strategic missiles." And he added that "a reported shipment to Cuba recently of atomic warhead materials was estimated as quite substantial."

The size Thurmond gave for the Soviet force—which he said is under command of Gen. C. O. Slazenko—is about double the 16,000 to 17,000 Soviet military personnel President Kennedy said are still in Cuba.

The Pentagon spokesman, while contradicting the senator's figure of 30,000 to 40,000 Russian troops, also took issue with his statement that there are missiles in Cuba with ranges up to 2,200 miles.

The Pentagon said there is no evidence of ballistic missiles or nuclear warheads in Cuba. It added that although there are FROG missiles with a 300-mile range, the ones in Cuba have about a 50-mile range.

Dr. Sheppard Fails to Get Parole

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's Pardon and Parole Commission voted 4-0 not to recommend any change in the second-degree murder sentence of Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, former Bay Village osteopath convicted of killing his pregnant wife eight years ago.

The handsome father of one entered the Ohio prison system July 20, 1955. By law, he must serve a minimum of 10 years, less time for good behavior, before he can be considered for parole.

His attorneys petitioned for a clemency hearing, which was held Tuesday, in the hope of convincing commissioners that Sheppard's medical services and conduct in prison have earned a reduction in sentence to manslaughter or commutation to time already served.

The parole commission—with the exception of Col. William M. Vance, who disqualified himself because of a previous connection with the case—voted Thursday, but withheld announcement of the result until today.

The decision was forwarded to Gov. James A. Rhodes, who is not obliged to follow it.

She also pointed out many problems, relating to sickness and injuries, which may arise after a nuclear attack or in shelter living. The medical self help course is being carried out at Yerger School.

Hempstead County Proud of Native Son Who Was Named Man of the South for 1962

By MARY ANITA LASATER

The people of Hempstead County are wearing a wider smile and a greater air of pride these days. For a native son has been named Man of the South for 1962 by "Dixie Business," a monthly business magazine published in Atlanta, Ga.

Dr. Robert Mantion Wilson of Richmond, Va., who recently received this honor, was born and reared in Columbus. Not only is he the first man from this immediate area to be so named, but only one other Arkansan has received the honor in the 20 years it has been given. That was C. Hamilton Moscos, lawyer and utility executive of Little Rock.

The choice of Dr. Mantion Wilson for Man of the South is well-deserved and is based on the unselfish service to mankind he rendered to lepers in Korea for 33 years. When, as a young man, he had finished high school in his home town of Columbus, Arkansas, he came to Batesville, and the School of Medicine at Washington University in St. Louis, Mo., he interned in hospitals in St. Louis and New York, then went to Korea in 1908 as a medical missionary under sponsorship of the Southern Presbyterian Board.

One day a young girl, who was a leper, found her way to the mission compound and was later discovered in the furnace room of the gate house, hiding from the weather and other people. A place was made for her to live in an abandoned brick kiln, and that was the beginning of a leper colony which grew to house and care for 800 sufferers. Though there was a gradual increase in its size, the colony was never large enough for those who wanted and needed to enter it, and a line of lepers was always on either side of the road to the colony just waiting to be admitted.

Dr. Wilson founded Graham Hospital at Kwangju in 1908 and the leper colony only three miles away. The city of 40,000 people did not like the proximity of a leper colony, and in time it was moved to Conchun on a beautiful peninsula of extreme South Korea.

The young medical missionary was a bachelor when he went to the Far East, but in Korea he met another young missionary, from South Carolina. They fell in love, were married, and lived together happily for 53 years, sharing their concern for humanity and each other until her death last year. Seven children were the result of their union, and all but two went into some phase of the medical profession for their life's work.

As for other members of the family, a brother, Charlie, is Hempstead County Memorial Hospital Superintendent, and another brother, Joe, and a sister, Mrs. R. E. Jackson, make their home in Columbus. In September 1925, Charlie Wilson went to Korea to join his brother, Mantion, and remained there for 25 months.

Since Dr. Wilson had been in the states for a year's leave, which he got every seven years, the two brothers actually crossed the Pacific together with other members of the doctor's immediate family. And they were sorely needed, for when they reached Japan, the dreadful earthquake of 1923 had just hit Tokyo and Yokohama. At the latter city, the ship took 1,400 refugees on board. Every helping hand was put to good use.

The good doctor, now retired and living in Virginia, has had an exciting, colorful, and fulfilling life. Next week we will tell you more about his children, hunting in Korea, and where he was at Memphis, now nearing completion, the outbreak of World War I.

$100 Reward for Cattle Thieves

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Cattlemen's Association, upset at a series of rustling incidents, called attention Thursday to its standing reward of $100 for any conviction of violators.

Last week a Santa Gertrudis calf valued at $1,000 was stolen from the Winrock Farms and a Hereford calf was taken from a neighboring ranch. Pulaski County Deputy Sheriff Ben Williams reported Thursday that six Hereford yearlings have disappeared from the George Alexander plantation at Scott since last fall.

The Association's board of directors said at a meeting Thursday there was no exact count of the number of rustling incidents in the state.

Dr. W. T. Berry Jr. of Winrock Farms told the board rustlers now have tranquilizer guns and fast cars and are harder to apprehend.

Britain, Italy Leaders Hope for Solution

By GERALD MILLER

ROME (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and Italian Premier Amintore Fanfani met for a second round of talks today in their uphill battle to overcome unyielding French opposition and salvage a place for Britain in the European Common Market.

The two leaders met for three hours Friday. An Italian spokesman said they explored ways to keep alive hopes for a unified Europe including Britain.

Both pledged to continue the drive for European unity. "The ideal of European unity is, between us, higher than ever," Fanfani declared. "If there are troubles," Macmillan said, "they are a spur to further efforts toward European unity."

Macmillan's crucial talks here were his first with a European government chief since France stunned the West by vetoing Britain's bid for Common Market membership.

Italy, disturbed at the prospect of growing French power within the Common Market, had championed British entry. The four other Common Market members—West Germany, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg—also rallied unsuccessfully to the British cause.

In a related development, former U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter met in London with British officials seeking closer trade ties with the United States to offset the effects of De Gaulle's veto.

The British assured Herter, now President Kennedy's special envoy on trade problems, that Macmillan's government will back to the hilt U.S. plans for cutting tariffs and spurring world trade.

Schools Have Many Items Worth Seeing

By RUTH MALONE

A whale oil (Betty) lamp that is a duplicate of one brought over in the Mayflower by the first governor of the original 13 colonies, boat stones used by Caddo Indian medicine men to ward off evil, unusual shells from foreign shores and local waters, too; paintings of a well known Arkansas artist of the early 1800, old guns and a collection of birds are just a few reasons hundreds of people are visiting Henderson State Teachers College Museum in the Arkansas Building on the campus in Arkadelphia.

The curator of this fascinating place, Elizabeth Brinkley, is also associate professor of biological sciences at this college. If my predictions come true I would say this attractive young woman will soon be too busy cataloging and arranging exhibits in this rapidly growing museum to have time for anything else. And she is dedicated to this project as Dr. P. G. Horton, who was the first curator of the Museum and as Miss Brinkley said, "the one responsible for organizing, collecting and preparing material for the Museum."

Visitors are more than mildly excited over the first circulating exhibition from the U. S. Museum of Modern Art, which is now at the Henderson Museum. Already the guest book is filled with the names of those who have enjoyed the 65 photographs of the two major American photographers — Harry Callahan and Robert Frank.

Interest in the museum is shown in other departments on the campus as Thom Seavell, head of the Art Department, and his students set up and arranged this photography exhibit which is the first of the type that introduces a new service at the museum.

Invitations were sent to many high schools so students and teachers could come and enjoy this free exhibition, which was made possible by a grant of the Columbia Broadcasting System Foundation Inc. This foundation makes contributions to cultural and educational institutions.

I agreed with a well known narrator who wrote of Robert Frank, "Man, you've got eyes," for these unusual photographs shows details and unusual aspects of every day life across the nation, while Harry Callahan's work includes more street scenes and studies of nudes and nature bringing out beauty of photography in a most extraordinary manner. One must see these photographs to realize how uncommon is this unusual exhibition. Some of the titles include — a white pidgeon on a dark street — a trolley in New Orleans — A Welsh miner — Indian hand on shoulder — a night scene of a parachute jump — a Chinese cemetery in San Francisco and golden rod in the snow.

When Elizabeth Brinkley attracted my attention to a picture titled "Grasses in Snow" and another showing a boy on a motorcycle, she expressed my feelings as she said, "See, there is a photograph to appeal to every person. Thom Seavell had seen this exhibit and knew of its wide appeal."

Since the museum had its beginnings in 1949 there have been many gifts and loans. Miss Brinkley stated, "The Horace White collection of birds and animals formed the nucleus of the Museum, she said. Plans are now being formulated to have these birds placed in cases reflecting their natural habitat. The curator invites all bird lover to assist her in this project.

It was quite fitting that the collection of early lighting devices, which was acquired last year be presented in conjunction with a dinner honoring Dr. and Mrs. Horton, when he retired. This collection is displayed in a most attractive manner and it was not hard to understand as the art director and his students also arranged this exhibit. Many other teachers have shown interest and helped Miss Brinkley stated, James Durham of the Speech Department was helpful in the light exhibit and other museum cases. The curator mentioned that there have been many others who have given valuable aid and time in this work.

Elizabeth Brinkley is anxious to trace any leads that might develop into interesting additions to the museum and she would appreciate "finds" people might like to loan to given.

collection was bought by the museum but since then many pieces have been given or purchased. I was attracted to a pair of very small brass carriage lamps and I was told that the pair of Pennsylvania Dutch Heart Foot Candle sticks have made many visitors ask where they might find some duplicates. There is a very old bronze grease lamp, a whale oil burning coach lamp and even an old cigar lighter that once was seen in a tobacco store at the turn of the century.

Nearly is a case of Americana objects and the old sausage grinder, old irons, charcoal foot warmer and even a miniature iron stove bring back memories of other days when this country was much younger.

Carved ivory jewelry, fans, embroidered shawls and other beautiful things are included in the rare collection of the world travelers, the David Balls, which fill several cases in the museum.

Old students will be attracted to the Henderson Memorabilia case with its programs, pictures, old football helmet, even bread pans which were used in the first college kitchen.

Gifts from the Freedom Train in 1947 are to be found in one case. These letters, books, pictures and other gifts were sent by the French people in appreciation for food gifts sent to them.

Former students and teachers have brought their own collections. Among these I noticed a rare German Bible over 200 years old and a collection of shells found on the coast of New Guinea.

In disclosing future plans the curator told of a display of paintings by the late Charles Richardson and his students. She showed me several paintings of this landscape artist who came to Arkadelphia in 1885 and lived on Richardson street in that city. Many Arkansas homes have his beaches and landscapes she said. As soon as enough of the paintings by the artist and his students are located an exhibition is planned.

The present mineral collection includes one case from the Arkansas Crater of Diamonds and another of replicas of famous diamonds in the world while beautiful crystals from Hot Springs add to the exhibit.

One thing I noticed was many cases were gifts of graduating classes and I thought today the museum might be an inspiration to graduates as the museum will certainly bring recognition to their alma mater.

The valuable collection of Caddo Indian artifacts in one room contains hammer stones, celts (gougers), arrow points, and pottery in an amazing display which includes conical clay pipes, ceremonial bowls, rattle bowls, water bottles, and unique full bodied effigy seed jars in designs unique and fascinating. As Miss Brinkley told of the men who gave this amazing collection I could picture the endless hours and patient devotion of the "diggers."

Most of these men who were interested in archeological research were connected with the college and did their diggings as a group. They spent endless hours mending small pieces of pottery to make a pattern. For the most part the collection is from campsites found in mounds near Arkadelphia but other artifacts are being added. This part of the museum is a complete story in itself for the Caddo Indians were some of the earlier settlers of our part of the country and had a culture to be admired.

I hardly agreed with the curator when she said, "The museum today is really just a start of our plans for the future." She then took me to a large storeroom and I understood for there are shelves and cases of interesting things to add and Elizabeth Brinkley is excited over the promises of friends and strangers. Letters come and people call to tell of people, places and things so the future additions to the Museum on Henderson campus look promising.

Royal Couple Finally Leave
VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP)—Twice delayed by weather on a flight to the South Pacific, Britain's Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip left here today on a flight to Fiji via Honolulu.

It was reported the Honolulu refueling stop would be eliminated, but it was reinstated. The flight, plagued by foul weather Thursday, was resumed under clear skies.

A new upped hair style has been designed for those who don't have hair to the waist or even to the shoulders. The model at left wears hers with off center thin straight bangs slanting across the forehead. Hair at sides is brought in front of the ears in a long, thin curl turned toward her cheek. Ears, back in view for '63, are showing here as well as in the other variations. The extreme upped hairdo (center) is built around a small hair piece twisted in a roll, open in the center, and the ends of your own hair are pulled through, Svelte but not for women with extremely thin faces, the hairdo (right) shows all hair drawn up from the back of the head. DOROTHY DIX

Not On His Trail

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: Will you tell me why I have failed to get my man? I'm a blonde with brains; won second prize as beat-dressed girl and dancer at our high school; was Betty Co-ed of the senior class, member of the National Honors Society and captain of cheerleaders.

Since graduation I've worked for a local company and am entering a mid western college this month on a scholarship. I am fussy about whom I date.

Living as I, near a big university, I meet dozens of nice college boys. Only one ever impressed me. I'll call him Tommy Peach, though that isn't his name.

A year ago this month I caught a fleeting glimpse of him at a dance in his frat house. The brief encounter was enough to convince me that this handsome, athletic, collegiate-looking guy could be my destiny. I hadn't managed a formal introduction by the end of May so wrote him a note saying we had so many mutual friends — mentioning several fraternity brothers of his, I thought we ought to meet. I spoke of the dance at which I had seen him.

Two months later I received a phone call. When I heard the name I got that butterfly feeling in my stomach. Yes, it was Tommy Peach.

He said, Things are pretty dull in my town, how are they in yours? I said, Dead as a doornail. He said Fine, why don't we get together and do something about it?

We drove over to a log cabin on the campus in my car. The cabin was locked for the summer so we sat on the steps with a gentle breeze rippling the tall grass and a full moon shining down on us through the trees.

You couldn't ask for a more fabulous atmosphere. We had a portable radio and danced on the little porch. He talked and we got acquainted, even kissed a bit.

Two weeks later my girl friend and I went to a university dance only to find it was called off at the last minute because of exams. So we parked in front of the hall and who should come out eating popcorn but Tommy Peach. I said, Hi! casually.

Two weeks later I sent him a birthday card; he was 21 and I had become 18 only a few days before. Silence!

The following Friday I invited him to our summer home for the weekend. His mother said he would be unable to come.

When I got back from vacation I wrote him another letter. Silence. Last fall I went to several dances. Tommy was at every one with a different girl each time. He is everything I want in a guy all wrapped in one. Do you think our romance is hopeless? —Ever the Optimist

Dear Ever: You are rapidly destroying by frenzied, over-attention, the very thing you seek to encourage. Relax.

It's for sure that you'll never win Tommy Peach by high-pressure methods. Your record shows you possess brains, initiative and persistence—all essential qualities to success in everything but getting your man.

Had you assumed the role of sinking violet waiting to be discovered by the great big he-man, you might be his today. Even if he wasn't a he-man you should have made him feel like one by giving him a chance to pursue you. Despite his athletic appearance and 21 years, he sounds like a Mama's boy. The very fact that his mother acted as watchdog would indicate this.

Wake up from your Midsummer Night's dream. Stop being Timid. Let Oberon rest in peace. Profoundly by the experience and go on to a more interesting and broader life at your own college

Dear Helen: I am the mother of 10 children, all married but one—a 9-year-old girl who came long after her brothers and sisters were grown. My husband, an invalid, spoils her shamelessly, giving her all the pretty clothes, toys and dancy the others never had.

This creates trouble. She's so beautiful; bright at school; with a mind of her own but very selfish. She wants her own way all the time. When my seven grandchildren—her nieces and nephews (it sounds ridiculous), come to visit us, she bullies them to tears, and flies into a tantrum if they touch her toys.

I try to discipline her for the good of everybody concerned; scold, slap, whip and cut off her allowance. Then she will run to her father. He takes her side and so we fight all the time. After 30 years of being a faithful wife and mother I can't put up with this any longer and have told my husband so. He said, Go! I cry all the time. What shall I do? —Nervous Wreck

Dear Nervous: You're the hub around which the wheel of your family revolves; so don't fly off. To rear 10 is an accomplishment in itself and you deserve a lot of credit.

The main trouble is that this last baby came so late in your life. When you're young you can take children in your stride but as you grow older, it's not so easy. If you are calm, your little girl will reflect your calmness, raise her. While her father's indulgence complicates the situation, force yourself to laugh it off. The more you oppose, the more determined both he and she will be.

Be patient and know that her willfulness is simply insecurity brought on by the incongruous difference in her age and that of her own brothers and sisters and their children. Give her a chance to outgrow it.

Have you a problem? Perhaps Helen Worden Erskine can help you. Write her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Somebody Is Cutting Corners

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Somebody is cutting corners, and the Secret Service doesn't like it. The culprits are cutting corners on U.S. currency—on some 450 pieces of it since last November.

The Secret Service said Thursday the bills ranged in denomination from $1 to $100 and had been found in bundles of other currency turned in by various banks in the state to the Federal Reserve Bank in Little Rock.

There are usually simple explanations to such actions, the service said: Teenagers may cut off the corners as a fad or more serious persons may lop them off with the intent of raising lower denomination bills.

There have been no cases reported of raised bills, the service said, and the fad idea has been discounted because of the frequency of large denominations—"the kind of money teenagers usually don't have."

In each case the service said, the denomination number of "counter" is the Secret Service calls it, has been cut off.

"The volume is the distressing thing," Leroy M. Lettier, special agent in charge of the Secret

Race Brawl in Indiana High School

GARY, Ind. (AP)—The three upper grades of suburban Calumet Township High School remained closed today because of a brawl Thursday between white and Negro youths.

School officials decided to keep the school closed over the weekend, but opened the junior high school.

There was talk of a special convocation to try to iron out the trouble, but no date was set.

Five Negro youths, residents of Calumet Township but not students in the school, were arrested after the fight, Nathaniel James, 18, and William C. Harris, 18, were charged with assault and battery. Louis Jones, 18, Paul Lewis, 18, and Jimmy Hood, 19, were charged with trespass.

State police and sheriff's deputies broke up the fight, which involved about 30 youths. At least five were injured, but none required hospitalization. Several were treated at the school for cuts about the head and neck.

Two white boys 14 and 15 years old were questioned by police and were released.

Officers confiscated an assortment of weapons that included switchblades, tinoleum knives, utility pole spikes, an improvised cat-o-nine-tails, chain lengths and pocket knives. A paring knife was taken from a girl.

Teachers said the trouble started Tuesday night with a fight between a white youth and a Negro in a locker room after a basketball game. Fighting erupted again Wednesday, and Principal Max Hile reportedly lost his glasses while trying to stop it.

Service in Little Rock, said. He said 111 of the mutilated bills were found Thursday.

Corner cutting of this type is a misdemeanor, the service said, and can bring a maximum fine of $100, imprisonment of six months, or both. Proof of criminal intent is not necessary for conviction, Lettier said.

He said merchants and banks are being asked to help spot such bills before they reach Little Rock.

Mississippi U. Faces a New Charge

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—The University of Mississippi, now faces the prospect of a second court battle over desegregation. Another Negro wants to join James H. Meredith as a student at the university.

Meredith's enrollment for the spring term went off quietly Thursday. But the university rejected the application of Dewey Greene Jr., 22, Greenwood, Miss., who attended Mississippi Vocational College for Negroes last year.

Greene was told he did not meet entrance requirements of the university.

An attorney for Greene said he would ask a federal court to order the school to accept Greene.

William Higgs, a white attorney representing the Gandhi Society for Human Rights, told a news conference late Thursday night that he would seek to have the university registrar, Robert B. Ellis, held in contempt of court for denying Greene's application.

The son of California Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Yale University law student Jerry Brown, is assisting Higgs in the Greene case.

Ellis told newsmen he turned down Greene because he was not qualified for admission—the same grounds which the university cited in two letters last fall rejecting Greene's written application.

Ellis—cited for contempt twice previously during the long legal fight leading to Meredith's enrollment—said he sent Greene a telegram confirming the two letters and asking him not to appear on campus.

Higgs said he would ask U.S. District Court to order Greene's admission under the terms of the same court order which admitted Meredith.

Petitions Recalled

CROSSETT, Ark. (AP)—Ashley County Judge W. T. Higginbotham says a hearing scheduled for today on proposed annexation of North Crossett to Crossett was called off after petitions asking for the annexation were withdrawn.

North Crossett residents voted 646 to 24 against annexation last month in an informal special election called by Higginbotham.

Urges Aid in Industrial Development

By AL DOPKING

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Dr. David Mullins, president of the University of Arkansas, urged state business and community leaders today setup up their support of research as a major key to industrial development in Arkansas.

Dr. Mullins made his appeal before the Arkansas Chamber of Commerce managers at their annual meeting here.

The university president pointed out that natural resources alone do not automatically lead to high-level prosperity and that broader steps should be taken to increase the state's scientific personnel.

"A major part of the industrial development in these times is in such highly scientific and complex fields as electronic and chemical industries," Mullins told the group. "These industries rest squarely on the availability of quality research programs."

Mullins said the University of Arkansas had accomplished much with little in the field of research, but it remained its "most underdeveloped arm."

He called attention to the $200,000 appropriation the university is seeking from the current state legislature to strengthen its graduate and research program.

He said a substantially larger investment in personnel, buildings and equipment must be made if Arkansas hopes to make any real research headway towards industrial development.

Mullins, in his call for closer cooperation between business leaders and the university in research efforts, emphasized the effects university research had already had on agriculture. He inserted a word of caution, too, that the agriculture research program should not be neglected "in our eagerness to speed up industrial development."

"They go hand in hand," he said.

The chamber of commerce managers were reminded by posters at the meeting that $15 billion is spent annually in research and development projects and that Arkansas gets only one one-thousandth of the prime contracts.

Mullins pointed out that federal, state and private financial help for such projects on the campus had grown from $895,000 to $1,273,000 in the last two years.

But he said Arkansas still invests far less than most southern schools in graduate and research programs.

"A recent study," he said, "revealed that Arkansas is trailed only by West Virginia in this important area of activity in the 16-state southern region."

"The study showed that Arkansas was spending 5 cents for $100 of personal income, compared to 7 cents in Mississippi, 8 in Texas, 9 in Louisiana and 13 in Oklahoma," he said.

Mullins added that some found it difficult to recognize the value of research because tangible results often came slowly. He pointed out that the state only now was beginning to realize full benefits from agricultural research which it started years ago.

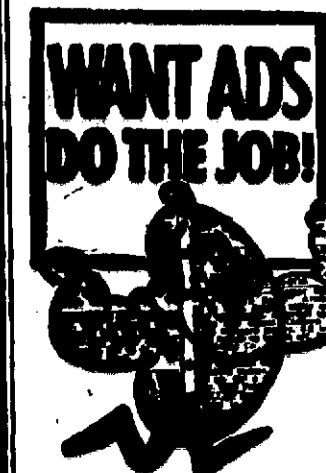

Because of this, he said, forward-looking business and community leaders had a crucial role in marshalling informed support for essential research programs.

Meredith's suit was a class action—which means the court order applies to any Negro.

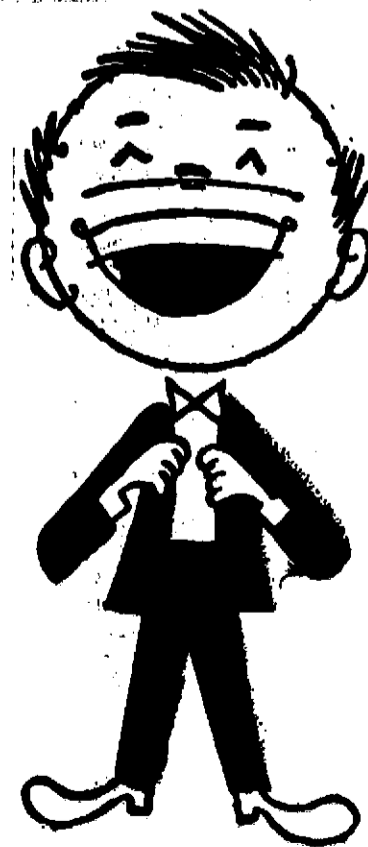

Although Meredith has two classes which meet Saturday, he said he would not return to campus until Sunday.

Flees East Berlin on Wire Cable

By GEORGE BOULTWOOD

BERLIN (AP)—It was quite a feat anyway.

Sliding along on the seat of his pants, an East German trapeze artist fled over the heads of Communist border guards into West Berlin on a power cable.

The cable normally carries 110,000 volts—but West Berlin police said it long had been out of use when Horst Klein, 36, made his escape Dec. 27.

"But Klein did not know that," Klein said he "could hear humming and had a tickling sensation in my seat"—but apparently this was psychological because the police spokesman said there was no power in the cable.

A professional trapeze artist, Klein was banned from appearing in East German circuses because he was an outspoken anti-Communist.

"I couldn't live any longer without the smell of the circus in my nostrils," he told newsmen Thursday night.

On the night of Dec. 27 he climbed a steel power pylon on the Communist side of the Berlin wall and leaped to the big porcelain insulator on the cable.

What was running through his mind—and probably gave him the sensations he reported feeling—was "if I touched the tower and cable at the same time, I could be turned to ashes."

Asks Dismissal of Barnett Charges

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Attorneys for Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett and Lt. Gov. Paul B. Johnson Jr., asked the U.S. Appeals Court here today to dismiss criminal contempt charges, contending their acts in the Mississippi desegregation crisis complied with state laws.

They said the criminal contempt charges, instituted by the Justice Department at the direction of the Appeals Court, attacked the sovereignty of Mississippi.

"All actions complained of were actions of fully qualified and elected officials, and not as individuals, and in compliance with valid laws of the state of Mississippi," the attorneys said.

France, Russia Sign to Trade

MOSCOW (AP) - The Soviet Union and France signed a trade agreement today for an exchange on each side running to about $100 million a year.

Christian De Margery, head of the French delegation, said the negotiations were satisfactory from the French point of view, and went off well.

The pact covers a three-year period, 1963-65.

The agreement represented about a 10 to 15 per cent increase over the previous pact.

The French agreed to supply what De Margery described as hard goods, normally machinery and fabrics.

The Russians will supply the French anthracite coal, oil and oil products, and pulpwood for paper, plus some other raw materials.

both of us."

"I'm not carrying a gun, Sugar Pie," said Matt. "Nor a blackjack. I don't even have a vase to crack over your head. But next time I come to this neighborhood, I'll wear a crash helmet and a bullet-proof vest."

He found his way to the bathroom and washed blood from his hair. The cut seemed small, but it had bled quite a bit. His shirt had blood on it. He found some antiseptic in the medicine cabinet and poured some on his hair. It was pink stuff and made his hair look funny. He used his comb and then went back into the living room.

Westfall was feeling his swollen eye tenderly with his fingers, and Suzy had forgotten all about the disturbance. On the end table, which had been righted, was a tiny box and on Suzy's finger was a very large diamond ring which she held up to the light and looked at with awe.

"Oooh Malcolm! You're wonderful! We'll be married right away!" she said.

"Let me be the first," said Matt. He blew a kiss to Suzy and put on his topcoat.

"Don't ever come back," said Suzy.

"You think I like it here?" asked Matt. He turned to Westfall. "For your information, Daddy-O, she's as unsullied as a nuclear reactor."

Matt went to his car, considerably aware that women are strange at times. But he supposed that to women men were not only strange, but ridiculous.

He fumbled for his keys, finally found them, and started the car. He drove away feeling sorry for himself.

Dist. Leading Malvern Comes Here Tonight

By CARTER HARDAGE

Tonight at Jones Field House, a pair of tough Malvern teams go against Hope's Junior and Senior Boys. Hope's Senior Boys dropped their last match, played at Malvern 63-59.

Malvern has a tall team and a good scoring attack. Stanfield is their leading scorer. Also, they have four men among the top ten scorers in the district. Malvern is tied for district honors with Fairview. These will be a fine pair of games and fans are encouraged to see the first one at 7:00 tonight.

Lifes Romance

— my son and me. Here is a man guiding the steps of a young life.

This boy is seeking the world through the eyes of a man — a father. They play together, discuss important issues together and, they go to church together. To be a father is about the highest privilege that ever comes to any man. And to be a good father takes about all there is of any one of us. How foolish if we neglect to include regular church attendance in our program while he is growing up. What a tragedy if we fail to introduce him to God and overlook the importance of fellowship through a prayer life. Here is an opportunity for your best to show up... it will culminate into one of Life's great Romances.
